

INTENSIVE ENGLISH PROGRAM

Carroll University offers an Intensive English Program (IEP) designed to help non-native English speakers increase their English language skills. The goal of the program is to prepare students with the oral and written language skills they need to be successful in an American university. The curriculum is designed for students at all levels of English language proficiency.

ABOUT THE INTENSIVE ENGLISH PROGRAM

The English instruction you receive from Carroll University will prepare you for using English in academic as well as professional contexts. Students will also gain experience in practicing English in different everyday real-world settings. We use current materials and communicative techniques, which will get our students speaking and using the English language right away. Our staff is committed to working with international students to help them find the language learning level that is most appropriate for their needs, and working closely with students to help them set and achieve their language learning goals.

Students in Carroll University's Intensive English Program can expect to:

- Speak English more fluently in formal and informal settings;
- Build listening and comprehension skills, enabling them to better understand and participate in university level lectures;
- Write effective academic papers and essays;
- Refine oral communication skills and pronunciation to be better understood;
- Actively practice using English appropriately in various social contexts.

The Intensive English Program at Carroll University is flexible in nature, assessing the needs of the international students we serve, and placing them accordingly. Students entering the program might be placed in a full-time intensive English course of study (20 instructional hours per week), or placed in a combination of university-level academic courses, in conjunction with some intensive English language study.
