Every year Carroll University holds a meeting for its alumni-living or vacationing in Florida and gets a crowd of about 50 people to appear in Fort Myers to ruminate and reminisce, chin for a while, then lunch together and hear someone from the school give us a briefing on what is transpiring at Carroll. I wondered to the staff one day, “Why only Florida? Why not a rally in Indiana?” They responded by agreeing to come…if we could get enough people to make it worthwhile. And suggested we should follow up and invite all the Indiana Carroll alums to dinner at Meridian Hills Country Club in Indianapolis.

The date selected is the 13th of October, the time is 5:30 PM, and the address is 7099 Spring Mill Road, Indianapolis. Oh, yes, the price. It’s $30. And this includes a free bar.

I can’t remember the last time Carroll Hoosiers assembled. Must have been during the Cleveland Administration or maybe the Presidency of James Garfield, so gathering a respectable group will take some effort. But let’s give it a try. We’d like to show you what Carroll has done to the campus and what it is preparing to do for the future; have one of the Carroll team talk about today’s academic curriculum, about the makeup of the student body and what the enrollment looks like or whatever you want to hear. We have a President who is really a driver, and he has used the momentum and tradition of the past to refit Carroll so it moves us into the front ranks of educational experience. There is much to be proud of, and I promise you’ll enjoy the update.

And finally. There won’t be a pledge card at each plate. This is an exercise in a “reconnection” and we’d like very much to have you come.

Cordially,
Pershing “P.E.” MacAllister ’40
