

YOU'RE DRIVEN TO LEAD.
WE'LL GIVE YOU THE TOOLS.

bkose@carrollu.edu

Great schools require great leaders

If you're ready to take your career to the next level, Carroll's Master of Science in Educational Leadership program will get you there. In this innovative program, you'll receive targeted project-based and performance-based learning opportunities that will equip you with the skills, knowledge and experiences you'll need to help shape tomorrow's academic landscape.

Take your place among a supportive community of tomorrow's academic leaders, develop critical leadership skills and broaden your industry network.

About the Program

In Carroll's Master of Science in Educational Leadership program, you'll learn educational leadership theory and research, instructional leadership, continuous improvement, curriculum development, educational law, resource allocation and budgeting, as well as develop your skills as a leader and collaborator. You'll learn—and practice—the latest strategies and methods for developing schools of excellence, equity, and inclusivity.

Licensure for Director of Instruction and/or Principal

The Master of Science in Educational Leadership program includes the requirements for licensures for Director of Instruction and Principal. It reflects the Wisconsin Administrator Standards, the National Policy Board for Educational Administration (NPBEA), and the Professional Standards for Educational Leadership (PSEL).

The Value of a Learning Community Model

In our program, you'll be part of a learning community, meeting with your peers one weekend a month over a 20-month period. This engaging and innovative approach provides you with the time and opportunities to examine current, relevant issues deeply and collaboratively in a community of learners. Each cohort is co-facilitated by two instructors who follow the program through its entirety.

High-Quality Practicum Experience

Our job-embedded, personalized, and integrated practicum sets us apart from other programs. When you graduate, you'll have engaged in 300 hours of on-site mentoring and work with school and district leaders, developed leadership skill sets and applied coursework learning. With a practicum customized to local contexts and your leadership aspirations, as well as ongoing practicum discussion and reflection with your cohort, these invaluable practical experiences will broaden your professional network and equip you with the knowledge, experiences, and skills to launch the next phase of your educational career.

District Partnership Opportunities

School District Partners with Carroll's Educational Leadership Program can further design and customize the ongoing practicum experience, for example, to support a "grow your own" program. In addition, students from Partner Schools can receive a 15% tuition discount. For more information, contact Dr. Brad Kose, Director of Graduate Programs bkose@carrollu.edu or Kyle Jones, Assistant Director of Graduate Admission kjones@carrollu.edu

For More Information

www.carrollu.edu/academics/education/ms-educational-leadership

Added value of a master's degree plus dual licensure

Cohort model builds a supportive close-knit learning community

Authentic and meaningful practicum experiences

Quick 20-month plan

Flexible combination of classroom and online learning

Only one weekend a month in class

Classes held at convenient Center for Graduate Studies