VISIT THE LIBRARY'S RENOVATED CLASSROOM

Karla Strand, Interim Associate Director, Reference, Instruction and Diversity & Denise Friestedt, Technical Services and Reference Assistant

One of the exciting changes that took place in the library this summer was the complete renovation of the Instructional Services Classroom. After surveying students about their use of the classroom and determining how librarians are teaching information literacy sessions, a team of library and ITS staff set about re-imagining the space. The classroom previously housed rows of tables and desktop computers in a fairly conventional format. In an effort to create a more mobile and active learning environment, we have replaced the stationary rectangular tables with trapezoid tables on wheels. One accent wall is a beautiful green and the carpet and chairs were upgraded to reflect the new color palette. White boards have been added to increase the potential for group learning and another port was added to increase the wireless signal in the room.

The updated classroom boasts impressive new technology. To the projection and screen system, we have added three 70-inch interactive displays mounted on the side and back walls. These touchscreen displays will allow for more dynamic and interactive information literacy instruction; all of the screens are connected and are controlled by a matrix system that is the first of its kind on campus. The audiovisual system has been upgraded as well. The desktops have been replaced by laptops that students will be able to use when the classroom is not booked for instruction sessions. Please note that these laptops will not be allowed to leave the classroom and must be checked out to you, so be sure to bring your ID.

The mission of the Instructional Services Classroom is to provide students, faculty and staff a facility conducive to academic research and writing. The space, laptops and printer are there to facilitate learning. The classroom is intended for use by professional librarians in information literacy instruction, but is open to students when these sessions are not taking place. Please check the online calendar for the latest schedule. Faculty interested in information literacy instruction for their courses should contact the librarian assigned to their area of study. Food and drink of any kind is NOT allowed in the classroom. Thank you for abiding by this rule; the library staff counts on your cooperation to help maintain the quality of the classroom environment and equipment.

We hope you enjoy the new, modern layout and design of the library's Instructional Services Classroom. The library staff would like to express its gratitude to ITS and CU administration for their support and guidance throughout this exciting process. ★

NEW DIGITAL COLLECTIONS FROM THE ARCHIVES

Amelia Osterud, Interim Library Director, Archivist and Digital Projects

This summer, the Archives launched two new digital collections – the Newspaper Clippings Collection and the Photograph Collection. Both are derived from archival collections related to Carroll history and are searchable from our Digital Collections website: digitalcollections.carrollu.edu.

The Newspaper Clippings Collection is an attempt to make the Archives' extensive clippings collection more useful. For many years, the Archives has been collecting clippings from newspapers and magazines of stories about anything related to Carroll. This includes sports, theater, campus events and institutional history – anything reported in the news related to Carroll. This collection is text searchable, as all of the articles are scanned and read by Adobe Acrobat's OCR (Optical Character Recognition) software. Currently, we have digitized articles from the late 1950s to 1974, with a few earlier exceptions, but we will be adding more throughout the year. Due to copyright restrictions, this collection will only be searchable from on-campus computers. The originals from the Clippings Collection are also available for viewing in the Archives.

The Carroll Photograph Collection is the second large digitization project we started this summer and is in response to the popularity of the Archives' Photo Collection (finding aid available online: <http://www.carrollu.edu/library/archives/FAphoto.asp>.) This collection houses photos of buildings, events, people, athletics and much more, and contains a wealth of visual information on Carroll's history. Like the Clippings Collection, this collection is very large and will take considerable time to digitize, so please keep checking back as we load more images. We've started with the buildings series, so take a look at how campus has changed throughout the years. We're also doing research on the images as we load them, trying to provide as much information as we can about the items in the photos. We encourage users to add comments and tags to the photos in this digital collection if you can help us identify people or events in these images.

In addition to these two collections, we also have digital student newspapers (1854-2009), the Wisconsin Artists Collection, Carroll Authors and more.

Postcard with pictures of the entire campus in 1912. The only building not still standing is Voorhees Cottage, which was built at the same time as Voorhees Hall (here called by its original name, Voorhees Dormitory.) Both were built in 1906. The cottage originally housed the college president and was converted into student housing in the 1940s before being razed in 1966 to make way for Shattuck Music Center. Frame Field is essentially in the same place as our current athletic facilities and was built in 1909, but the athletic facilities have undergone much renovation since then.

CHANGES TO BUSINESS ACCOUNTING RESOURCES

Nancy Bennett, Electronic Resources and Systems Librarian

At Carroll University's Todd Wehr Memorial Library, library liaisons are continually evaluating current and potential resources to ensure that we provide the best resources possible to support class assignments and research. To that end, beginning with 2013-14 academic year, we have discontinued our subscription to the Accounting Research Manager offered by CCH, but are pleased to announce the inclusion of the Bloomberg BNA Financial Accounting Resource Center.

Backed by the resources of Bloomberg, the global business leader on financial information and news, the Financial Accounting Resource Center offers a comprehensive research service providing:

- Full-text of accounting standards.
- In-depth expert analysis of both accounting policy and the U.S. GAAP.
- Codification of standards and regulations.
- SEC securities and regulations.
- News and commentaries about hot accounting topics.

Links to Bloomberg BNA Financial Accounting Resource Center can be found on the A-Z Database List as well as the various Business Pioguides on the library website. Please stop by the library or e-mail Nancy Bennett (nbennett@carrollu.edu) if you would like more information or need assistance using this exciting new resource. ★

INTRODUCING CLINICAL KEY

Susan Heffron, Health and Science Librarian

Clinical Key is a medical knowledge system recently released by Elsevier to take the place of MD Consult, which Carroll has subscribed to since 2006. Clinical Key provides quick, relevant and reliable access to evidence-based, point-of-care information relating to diagnosis, treatment, and medical procedures.

Clinical Key is also an electronic medical library that includes more than 1,000 current books and more than 500 full-text medical journals in every medical discipline, as well as 9,000+ videos of medical information, surgical procedures and other techniques. Information can be shared easily and the presentation maker is simple to use and creates presentations complete with citation and copyright information. Links to Clinical Key are on the library's database A-Z list and health sciences library guides such as the nursing, physical therapy and physician assistant Pioguides. Stop by the library, call or e-mail Susan Heffron (sheffron@carrollu.edu) to learn more about Clinical Key. ★

MARIAN THE LIBRARIAN

Dear Marian,

So bored...
 Read every internet meme.
 Pinned every Pinterest recipe.
 Rearranged my fantasy football team again.
 Don't even feel like finishing this sent-...

Wasting away,

Ugh

Dear Ugh,

Sounds like you need some activity! Here's what the library has for you:

- Leisure books: thrillers, biographies, mysteries, etc.
- DVDs: amazing documentaries, Oscar-winning films, Jurassic Park.
- A coffee shop: can I recommend something with caffeine for you?
- A variety of places to study: did you really think I wasn't going to recommend that?

Sincerely,

-Marian the Librarian
